Planning, orientation, form, function, light, spatial requirements, windows, doors, colour schemes and finishing materials and soft furnishings are all important aspects of home and interior design. HOW DOES IT ALL GO TOGETHER?

Day Two - Colour in the home

The use of colour may have a profound physical impact on home design internally and externally. Colour may prompt positive and/or adverse psychological emotions in people and when exposed for long periods of time, may result in chronic illnesses such as depression. As a major component of home and interior design, intelligent use of colour is essential for the occupier's sense of well-being and belonging. LEARN HOW TO DEVELOP COLOUR SCHEMES.
